DHL – What seems be an innovation for DHL?

Innovation – just another buzzword we are using in our daily language. But, what does that actually mean?

Well, innovation can simply be defined as something new – a new idea, device or method.

The term usually means something original and more effective and, as a consequence, new, that "breaks into" the market or society.

The term is related to, but not the same as, invention.

DHL – What seems be an innovation for DHL?

Why is this so important?

As innovation is closely linked to efficiency gains, this is also highly relevant to companies.

If we want to tap new markets and come up with new ideas, we have to all become innovators.

To ensure business growth, we have to enter into new fields of business like:

- E-Commerce
- E-Mobility

DHL – reasons for innovation

- We will be able to create a platform for research and collaborative innovation between DHL customers, start-ups, universities, industry partners and innovation experts.
- In close proximity to some of the world's most dynamic technology and innovation hubs.
- Innovation Center will house DHL's logistics innovations and offer customers and partners a sight into the future of logistics.
- e-Platforms cross all business. Orders, shipments, billing, duty, claims.

DHL – reasons for innovation

 It will showcase visions of what the world and its transport infrastructure might look like in 2050, as well as the latest technology trends in robotics and automation, artificial intelligence, self-driving vehicles and virtual reality – all of which are already being tested or implemented by the Group.
